Northern Tablelands, New South Wales. Towns of New England, New South Wales. Towns of New South Wales by region. Navigation menu. Personal tools. Once he had done so, New Zealand would come under the jurisdiction of the Governor of New South Wales. Hobson left Britain for New Zealand at the end of August. The first shipload of company emigrants departed soon afterwards, though no word had yet been received as to the success of the Tory's mission. The first successful shipment of frozen meat to England in 1882 offered hope, and the new technology would eventually cement New Zealand's place as "Britain's farmyard". The ability to export large quantities of frozen meat, butter and cheese restored confidence in an economy based on agriculture and intensified the transformation of the landscape from forest to farmland.
